

The Original Globe Reporter

Our Blessed Mother Mary

“Do whatever He tells you”

Volume 6 Number 1 A Respect-Life Newsletter January 2013

“God knows we’re trying”

I watched a video the other day. When it was over I thought, “This is what they are trying to take away from us.”

You may ask, “Who are They?” They are the ACLU (American Civil Liberties Union), The Far left members of the Democratic Party, more than 50% of the Attendance at the Democratic convention, the progressives from both Republican and Democratic parties, liberals and Atheists. It seems so sad that we have, here in this country, so many people deserting the Christian Faith. I hope you will take the time to see the video that inspired me. Paste this link to your URL. And see what they are trying to take away from us. <http://www.youtube.com/embed/vcmfCXwAFs4>.

Cold Winter Ahead

(Sent in by Catherine Breen)
It's late fall and the Indians on a remote reservation in North Dakota asked their new chief if the coming winter was going to be cold or mild. Since he was a chief in a modern society, he had never been taught the old secrets. When he looked at the sky, he couldn't tell what the winter was going to be like. Nevertheless, to be on the safe side, he told his tribe that the winter was indeed going to be cold and that the members of the village should collect firewood to be prepared.

But, being a practical leader, after several days, he got an idea. He went to the phone booth, called the National Weather Service and asked, 'Is the coming winter going to be cold?'

'It looks like this winter is going to be quite cold,' the meteorologist at the weather service responded.

So the chief went back to his people and told them to collect even more firewood in order to be prepared.

A week later, he called the National Weather Service again. 'Does it still look like it is going to be a very cold winter?'

'Yes,' the man at National Weather Service again replied, 'it's going to be a very cold winter.'

The chief again went back to his people and ordered them to collect every scrap of firewood they could find.

Two weeks later, the chief called the National Weather Service again. 'Are you absolutely sure that the winter is going to be very cold?'

'Absolutely,' the man replied. 'It's looking more and more like it is going to be one of the coldest winters we've ever seen.'

'How can you be so sure?' the chief asked.

The weatherman replied, 'The Indians are collecting tons of firewood'

“We need more wood!”

Drinks With a Twist sent in by Steve Foley

A union shop foreman walks into a bar next door to the factory and is about to order a drink to celebrate Obama's victory when he sees a guy close by wearing a Romney for President button and two beers in front of him. He doesn't have to be an Einstein to know that this guy is a Republican. So, he shouts over to the bartender so loudly that everyone can hear, "Drinks for everyone in here, bartender, but not for the Republican." Soon after the drinks have been handed out, the Republican gives him a big smile, waves at him, then says, "Thank you!" in an equally loud voice. This infuriates the union official.

The union captain once again loudly orders drinks for everyone except the Republican. As before, this does not seem to bother the Republican. He continues to smile, and again yells, "Thank you!"

The union thug once again loudly orders drinks for everyone except the Republican. As before, this does not seem to bother the Republican. He continues to smile, and again yells, "Thank you!"

The union guy asks the bartender, "What the hell is the matter with that Republican? I've ordered three rounds of drinks for everyone in the bar but him, and all the silly idiot does is smile and thanks me. Is he nuts?"

"Nope," replies the bartender. "He owns the place."

Judging a Book by it's Cover

The light turned yellow, just in front of him.

He did the right thing, stopping at the crosswalk, even though he could have beaten the red light by accelerating through the intersection.

The tailgating woman was furious and honked her horn, screaming in frustration, as she missed her chance to get through the intersection, causing her to drop her cell phone, makeup and spilling her coffee.

As she was still in mid-rant, she heard a tap on her window and looked up into the face of a very serious police officer.

The officer ordered her to exit her car with her hands held in plain sight ..

He took her to the police station where she was searched, fingerprinted, photographed, and placed in a holding cell. After a couple of hours, a policeman approached the cell and opened the door. She was escorted back to the booking desk where the arresting officer was waiting with her personal effects.

He said, "I'm very sorry for this mistake.

You see, I pulled up behind your car while you were blowing your horn, flipping off the guy in front of you and cussing a blue streak at him;

I noticed the 'What Would Jesus Do' bumper sticker, the 'Choose Life' license plate holder, the 'Follow Me to Sunday Mass' bumper sticker, the 'My Child is an Honor Student in St. John's Catholic High School', the Rosary Beads hanging from your rear-view mirror, the 'Our Lady of Guadalupe' decal in the back window' and the chrome-plated Christian 'fish' emblem on the trunk, so naturally....I assumed you had stolen the car.

Twinkie Twinkie Little Star

You may have heard that Hostess Bakery plants shut down due to a workers' strike. But you may not have heard how it was split up. The State Department hired all the Twinkies, the Secret Service hired all the HoHos, the Generals are sleeping with the Cupcakes and the voters sent all the Ding Dongs to Congress. The economy is SnoBalling, if we print any more money it would be called Wonder Bread. the country is going to the Devil Dogs.

Planned Parenthood: Your Voice Counts, Unless You're a Baby

by Steven Ertelt | Washington, DC | LifeNews.com | 12/10/12 4:34 PM

Planned Parenthood is promoting the International Day of Human Rights today, but apparently human rights don't extend to unborn children before birth.

"Today is Human Rights Day. No matter who you are, or where you live, your voice counts," the abortion business tweeted Monday afternoon.

But if you are an unborn child and you live in the womb, you have no human rights. That's because Planned Parenthood is the nation's largest abortion business

In its most recent annual report, Planned Parenthood did 329,445 abortions in 2010 while it provided prenatal care to only 31,098 women and referred only 841 women to adoption agencies. The number of women receiving prenatal care dropped significantly from 2009 to 2010, as the abortion business helped 40,489 women in 2009 — meaning almost 10,000 fewer women received prenatal support from Planned Parenthood last year than the year prior, or a drop of almost 25 percent.

The number of women getting adoption referrals also declined — from a low 977 in 2009 to 841 last year, or a decline of 14 percent.

Examined another way Planned Parenthood does 391 abortions for every adoption referral it makes and almost 11 abortions for every woman it helps with prenatal care.

Samuel Casey of the Jubilee Campaign issued a statement saying unborn children, superficially girls targeted by forced abortions, are ignored on this International Day of Human Rights.

“Yet there is likely one population group whose right to participate in public life will be, at best, blatantly ignored, or at worst, completely subrogated in the name of women’s rights: the unborn baby girl,” he told LifeNews. “More than 40 million abortions are performed worldwide each year. More than 85% of all abortions occur in developing countries. Many of these abortions target unborn baby girls, chosen for abortion solely because of their gender. Around the globe, women are missing in the millions—aborted, killed, neglected to death. In 1990 an Indian economist, Amartya Sen, put the number at 100 million.”

“Abortion has become one of the most preeminent threats to human life and dignity because it directly attacks life itself, the most fundamental good and the condition for all others. Abortion, the deliberate killing of a human being before birth, is never morally acceptable, even in the name of furthering women’s abilities to participate more fully in public life,” he said.

“On the occasion of Human Rights Day 2012, we encourage the international human rights community to remember, as most recently documented in the San Jose Articles, that there is no international human right to abortion,” Casey added. “In assessing our obligation to protect human life, We must begin with a commitment never to intentionally kill, or collude in the killing, of any innocent human life, no matter how broken, unformed, disabled or desperate that life may seem.”

Patient Passes Out, Turns Pale After Botched Abortion

by Steven Ertelt | Cleveland, OH | LifeNews.com | 12/10/12 5:08 PM

An abortion clinic patient turned pale and passed out as emergency medical personnel worked to help her following a failed abortion at a clinic in Cleveland, Ohio.

The pro-life group Operation Rescue obtained 911 records revealing that a Cleveland Surgi-Center abortion patient was rushed to the hospital after a clinic worker called 911 and reported that she had passed out and was turning pale due to apparent blood loss.

According to pro-life witnesses on the scene, the woman arrived at the Cleveland Surgi-Center abortion clinic shortly after it opened at 8:00 a.m. on Saturday, December 1, 2012.

"She could not walk on her own. The ambulance arrived about 10-15 minutes later. As far as we know, Surgi-Center does surgical abortions only on Saturday mornings and the abortionist had not arrived yet," Pastor Dave Henkel told Operation Rescue.

Troy Newman, President of Operation Rescue and Pro-Life Nation, told LifeNews, "Based on the records and eyewitness accounts, it appears that the patient suffered a from a chemical abortion gone bad."

Newman said a clinic worker placed the 911 call from her cell phone, which dropped the call twice, costing valuable time as the dispatcher had to keep calling her back. Finally the worker was able to communicate the problem to the dispatcher.

"It's a patient I have. She's in the process of having an abortion. She's bleeding heavily – heavily, and she's all passed out. Well, she's up now, but my nurse said she had passed out," the clinic worker said.

The worker later told the dispatcher that the 30-year old woman was turning pale and was suffering from abdominal pain. Workers put the woman into a wheelchair and wheeled her down a flight of stairs so that emergency workers could access her.

Operation Rescue has documented 31 medical emergencies this year alone at abortion clinics nationwide, with several additional reports for which no documentation is not yet available. The incident at Cleveland Surgi-Center is the third abortion complication documented at Cleveland abortion clinics this year. Two previous incidents took place at Martin Rud-dock's Abortion Access Center for Women's Health in September and November. "These incidents show a disturbing pattern of abortion abuses that are systemic throughout the abortion cartel. There is no such thing as a 'safe' abortion clinic. Every one we have ever looked at has been in violation of the law. Abortionists routinely dump their problems on emergency workers and provide little or nothing in terms of continuity of care. This presents a serious public health care crisis that need to be seriously addressed in every state," said Newman.

Pro-Life Youth Academy Training the Next Generation of Leaders

by Andrew Bair | Washington, DC | LifeNews.com | 12/10/12 4:03 PM

As we look back on 40 years since the tragic Roe v. Wade decision, the pro-life movement can be proud of 40 years of diligent, dedicated service to the cause of restoring legal protection to our society's most innocent and vulnerable. We have made considerable progress but there is more work to be done. We have great hope in the future as young pro-life leaders step up to guide the movement through its next chapter.

As evidenced by the youth presence at the annual March for Life and the growth of pro-life student groups on college campuses, it's clear our generation cares deeply about protecting life. With its Academy program, National Right to Life is harnessing that enthusiasm and training college students to become even more effective advocates for the unborn on their campuses and in their communities. Young people are not only pro-life leaders of the future; they are leaders today!

The National Right to Life Academy is a five-week educational program held in Washington, D.C. every summer for college students. At the Academy, students receive a thorough education from some of the movement's foremost leaders on a range of pro-life issues including abortion, euthanasia, stem cell research and healthcare rationing. In addition to traditional lecture classes, students benefit from hands-on segments where they have to make the pro-life case to a NRLC staff member who is role-playing the opposition's view.

Not only does the National Right to Life Academy offer pro-life information, it trains students in effective communication. Students receive training in speech, media relations and using social media for the pro-life cause.

Each summer, the students also attend the National Right to Life Convention, where they hear from pro-life leaders from across the country. Students have had the opportunity to visit Capitol Hill and meet with Congressman Chris Smith (R-NJ), co-chairman of the House Pro-Life Caucus.

Having attended the Academy myself in the summer of 2009, I benefited greatly from the program. It transformed me from a college student concerned about pro-life issues into a young pro-life leader with the know-how to effectively articulate the pro-life message. To this day, I continue to draw from the education I received at the Academy.

The fruits of the National Right to Life Academy are apparent. Graduates of the program are using their gifts and talents to advance the movement on their campuses, in their local right-to-life groups, at pregnancy resource centers and in their local communities.

Here is a glimpse in what just a handful of these young leaders are doing to advance the pro-life cause.

Matt Hanafin, a graduate from Burlington, Massachusetts, is a board member of Massachusetts Citizens for Life and worked on the successful "No on Question 2" campaign to defeat doctor-prescribed suicide on the ballot in the Bay State this past election. Matt called in to radio shows, wrote letters to the editor and used social media to inform voters about the dangers of the ballot initiative.

Ann Conant, a graduate from New Jersey, worked on the effort to retain pro-life Wisconsin Governor Scott Walker in the recall election in June. She spent the 2012 election cycle working with American Majority Action's "Fire Obama" campaign in Wisconsin. She currently works for the March for Life fund.

Rachel (Barga) Simpson, a graduate from Minster, Ohio, worked diligently to educate voters in the Cincinnati area during the 2012 elections. She helped distribute thousands of comparison pieces on the candidates' abortion positions. While in college at Miami University of Ohio, Rachel led her Students for Life group.

Erin Karlovich, a graduate from Michigan, returned to National Right to Life this past summer to help lead the program. She recently accepted a position at North Carolina Right to Life and has blogged about how to defend life against euthanasia rhetoric.

Lacey Dent, a graduate from West Virginia, is a board member of West Virginians for Life. She serves as the chapter president for Tucker County for Right to Life and has spoken at several statewide conventions held by West Virginians for Life.

John Seago, a graduate from Texas, is currently the Legislative Director for Texas Right to Life. Reflecting on his time at the Academy, John said, "The lectures and practicum were most valuable. They both ensured that we studied, knew, and reviewed the important arguments and material, and helped us gain effective speaking strategies and ease in lobbying, debating, and speaking in general."

Sarah Urdzik and Christina Geradts, graduates from North Carolina, have been active leaders of the Carolina Students for Life at UNC-Chapel Hill. Among the group's many achievements, it recently established a Parenting Student Assistance Fund to aid young mothers seeking to raise their children in addition to furthering their education.

Hannah Trice, a graduate from Little Rock, Arkansas, currently works at Arkansas Right to Life where she has done outreach to young people including organizing pro-life camps for teens and promoting pro-life essay and oratory contests.

Chelsea Shields, a graduate from Kenosha, Wisconsin, serves as the Milwaukee Regional Vice Chair for the Wisconsin Federation of College Republicans. She volunteers for Pregnancy Helpline of Janesville. During the 2012 election cycle, she interned for the Romney campaign.

Andrew and Natalie (Fohl) Votipka met at the National Right to Life Academy in the summer of 2010 and recently got married! Natalie currently works for New York State Right to Life and Andrew has volunteered for the organization helping with various projects including Camp Esther, an outreach to young people.

Rachel Schumacher, a graduate from Madison, Wisconsin, currently runs Madison Students for Life at the University of Wisconsin-Madison and helps with pro-life camps for teenagers with Wisconsin Teens for Life.

Tristen Cramer, a graduate originally from Wyoming, recently graduated from Regent University School of Law and passed the Virginia bar exam in June. She intends to use her legal career to advance the pro-life cause.

Devyn Nelson, a graduate from Fargo, North Dakota, serves as the Outreach Director for North Dakota Right to Life. Devyn said, "The National Right to Life Academy served me well in preparing me for this position. Not only did the Academy give me a thorough understanding of all the life issues, it helped me become comfortable and confident in speaking the truth about the life issues in public."

Heather Wilson, a graduate from Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, currently works for the Pennsylvania Pro-Life Federation as its Southeast Regional Coordinator. Heather actively works to build pro-life chapters in the Philadelphia area. After the Academy she said, "I feel much more confident that I can educate, influence and God-willing perhaps even change the hearts of people who are placed in my life as I share what I have learned this summer.”

Abigail Kiehl, a graduate from Lancaster, Pennsylvania, currently leads a faith-based ministry for post-abortive women in her hometown and worked for the Pennsylvania Pro-Life Federation as a clerical assistant.

Eileen Crosby, a graduate originally from Minnesota, currently works as a social worker in Steubenville, Ohio. Eileen brings her respect for life into her daily work caring for the needs of the sick and elderly. She also aided in 2012 election efforts in the key swing state of Ohio.

Mary Neven Brockway, a graduate from Michigan, has since interned at the Leadership Institute and will soon work for the Heritage Foundation, a conservative think-tank based in Washington, DC.

Veronica Arnold, a graduate from Texas, currently serves as a Legislative Associate at Texas Right to Life. At the end of her summer at the Academy, Veronica said, “After the Academy I can’t escape the feeling that I am now obligated to do all that I can to protect the dignity of life – because now I know what to do. I am so grateful for the knowledge and the skills I have been given.”

Often, young people are described as future leaders of the pro-life movement. That isn’t entirely accurate. Young people are current leaders in the pro-life movement. Empowered by a first-rate education at the National Right to Life Academy, young pro-life leaders are making a difference.

National Right to Life is currently accepting applications for the 2013 Academy. If you know a pro-life college student leader, encourage him or her to apply. With 2013 marking 40 years since Roe, now is not the time for our generation to sit on the sidelines.